Vote for Me

My name is Carolyn and I can't vote yet, so I'd like to ask you to vote for me in 2012.

Before I was born, some people think that I didn't even have the right to live, never mind the right to vote. My Mom and I sure fooled them.

Now six months later, the notion that babies like me don't want to live as much as you do seems just crazy. We're just as human as anyone else. We can't be discarded like so much trash.

They even say that aborting an unborn baby is a constitutional right, but I say the Supreme Court has no more power to repeal my right to live than it has to repeal the law of gravity. But that's not the only reason you should vote for me.

America has been going downhill ever since the Supreme Court made a mother's womb into the most dangerous place on earth. With 1 out of 3 babies still being aborted, the human womb has a survival rate worse than death row.

In fact, we've been killing so many babies that we've been killing our economy, too. Since 1967, we've aborted 54.3 million babies. That's 30 per cent of our entire generation under 45. It's equal to the population of our 73 largest cities.

It's as if we had a nuclear war and no one noticed. You sure didn't hear it on the nightly news.

The economic loss adds up to $43 trillion in lost GDP, a number that keeps climbing every year. If those kids had lived, we'd have 1.4 million more new businesses employing 21 million more workers, managers, taxpayers.

Meanwhile, our birth rate has dropped by 43% since 1960. How on earth can we have a growth economy in the face of trends like that?

The honest truth is that if America doesn't stop killing unborn babies, America won't have a future.

No kids. No future. It's that simple.

So do me a favor. Next time you vote, forget about Democrat. Forget about Republican. Vote your conscience. Vote for me.
