
We have a cure for the leading cause of death in America

Can you name the leading cause of death in the United States?

It's not heart disease or cancer or stroke. It's something that takes more lives than all of these.

It kills 72 times more Americans than murder, 36 times more than suicide, and 46 times more children than all other causes of infant death.

Yet many of our leaders won't touch it with a ten-foot pole. Yes, we're talking about abortion - the problem no one wants to talk about, but that just won't go away.

When the Supreme Court wrapped it in a cloak of "privacy," all it succeeded in doing was to cast a pall of denial around its terrible impact.

It failed to foresee that abortion would eventually take 54.3 million young lives, a toll equal to the population of our 73 largest cities. It's as if we had a nuclear war and nobody noticed.

It failed to foresee that abortion would wipe out 30% of the entire generation under 45, leaving survivors to face the prospect of the inevitable bankruptcy of Social Security and Medicare.

Yet, if those kids had lived, they would have generated more than $43 trillion in future GDP, or three times our current national debt.

It would also have had a major impact on jobs. If those kids had lived, our economy could support 1.4 million more new businesses and 21 million more jobs. We'd need at least a million more teachers, and 2 million more nurses, plus many more jobs that need doing because of kids.

It has also had a major impact on our churches. You can see the empty spaces in our pews – the young who never had a chance to live and those who lost faith in a society that had given up on them.

That's why we say: We don't have a debt crisis. We have a death crisis.

What's the cure? We think it is full and open discussion of the whole truth about abortion in America. That's why we're running ads like this.

We want the public to know the whole truth about what abortion is doing to the future of America, and not just what a biased, liberal media wants you to hear.

We want people to know the truth about abortion procedures so grisly no civilized society would use them to execute criminals.

We want people to hear from the women who suffer from post-abortion syndrome because they were never told the facts about abortion.

We want people to know the whole truth that the Supreme Court so conveniently brushed aside. And we want this to happen before America kills 30% of still another generation.

You can help by making sure your family is informed about an issue that has more to do with their future than almost anything else.
